It Didn’t Need to Be Different

Nothing needed to change.

Nothing needed to become something else.

What was there was already enough as it was.

No adjustment.

No variation required.

It didn’t need to be different.